Times Quebec Bureau QUEBEC CITY — The Parti Quebecois government wants exclusive control of Quebec tax dollars and the full powers of a sovereign state, Premier Rene Levesque said Wednesday.

"Not only would there be no more link with the federal parliament, but all our taxes would be paid to the same government," Levesque said in strongly reaffirming his government's committment to political independence for Quebec.

OTTAWA - One of the main reasons the economy is in trouble is that Canadians are living beyond their means, Prime Minister Tru-deau told the Commons as opposition MPs renewed demands for immediate ac-tion by the government to Statistics Canada figures released Tuesday showed 932,000 persons officially unemployed, the highest total in history. The unemployment rate of 7.9 per cent in Febru-ary equalled a post-Depres-sion high in 1958.

"That is a rhetorical suggestion Thank you very much, Trudeau replied when Clark demanded an "unequivocal commitment" that the major thrust of the budget and future economic policy would be to first unemployment.

Perhaps those who deserve praise backbenchers who changed their minds in the last year, and flew in the face of a strong resolution from the drunk party convention against mandatory seat belts.

The arguments in-favor of buckling up - of making drivers and passengers buckle up - should be wellknown by now, but they bear repeating. May the last holdouts on the bill be finally convinced that a law requiring the wearing of seat belts violates our civil liberties about as much as the strict provision that motor vehicles must drive on the suit and his soulder-length 1960s-style hair, it is-hard to spot Pierre Vallieres as a one-time revolutionary guru, once convicted of counselling political kidnapping. He's short, a bit plump, round-faced, and looks rather benign behind his gold-rimmed glasses. He's now a professor of rnalism, an occupation for which a jeans suit is also the uniform.

RICHARD GWYN

A Footnote to FLQ Crisis

What Vallieres once was matters because of what he now is, moderately influential Quebec intellectual) and what he now has written: A book claiming that the 1970 October crisis was the doing, not of FLQ terrorists, except as unwitting tools, but of Ottawa, which stage-managed the public into hysteria in order to foment terrorism. Vallieres' claim is nonsense, but ense that can be politically potent.

Secret Report

His new book, The Assassination of Pierre Laporte, has, if you believe the publisher's hype, sold out its French-language printing of 20,000. A second printing of 10,000 is being rushed out.

This bestseller will tell Quebecers that

Ottawa, alarmed by the strong Parti Quebecois showing in the May, 1970, evincial election, immediately began planning to manufacture a crisis. ebecers will learn that "the implemen tation of this manipulative operation" was assigned to a secret strategic operations centre, that FLQ cells were allowed to kidnap British trade commissioner James Cross and Quebec Labor Minister Pierre Laporte, and that Laporte later was killed, not by the FLQ but by persons unknown. Many Quebecers will believe this, and will believe also that it can happen again.

Of all emotions, paranoia is the hardest to cope with. Those who cry conspiracy genuinely believe in it.

To hurl back facts is futile. Vallieres' book contains among its innuendo and in-ference not a single new fact except those he has lifted from material collected for the 1975 CBC television documentary, The October Crisis.

It so happens that I worked part-time on the CBC project and stumbled upon the existence of the strategic operations centre. Vallieres couldn't even read the research files correctly. He's wrong on the date the centre was set up (it was after. not before, the kidnapping of Cross) and wrong, and wholly fanciful, in claiming that the centre ever composed a "scenario" on the political benefits of Laporte's body being found to have been nutilated by the FLQ.

Later, it so happens, I came upon a copy of the Dec. 6, 1970, final report to cabinet of this secret centre. Here, if anywhere — the report is stamped "secret" — is the smoking gun that Vallieres is looking for has to be hidden The main interest in this highly confidential report is that it isn't particularly interesting. It's quite well written, a bit bland, and contains nothing that the public at the time didn't know. Rather than the long-planned coup that Vallieres supposes occurred, the report blames Ottawa for doing nothing in ad-

"Sufficient information was available to forewarn the government of the possibility-probability of an October crisis occurring . . . yet little or no action was taken," it reads. This secret report soon may serve as vital evidence, not as a reply to Vallieres (he's beyond the reach of reason) but as a reply to the inquiry into the October crisis that the Quebec government says it may

Such an inquiry, says Prime Minister Trudeau, "has my blessing." If Trudeau has nothing to hide. The War Measures Act, as is obvious in hindsight, was unnecessary. At the time pathetically unaware of what really was going on, Ottawa had, or thought it had, no choice.

Only the FLQ cells knew what really was going on. They were acting out a role defined for them in an underground tract published in 1970, called Revolutionary Strategy and the Role of the Advance Guard, its author unknown, but obviously one of Quebec's revolutionary intellec-

Apostles of Violence

The FLO never was the underground army that Ottawa feared. It was a bunch of adolescents with posters of Che Guevara, on their walls. Idealists in their own crazy way, the FLQ members considered themselves the advance guard destined to "raise the creative violence of the masses" and so bring about revolu ion. Terror, they knew, was unpleasant, but legitimate.

It is not bombs that create repression." said the essay on revolutionary strategy, "but repression that makes bombs necessary

On Oct. 17, 1970, a human "bomb" exploded and killed Pierre Laporte. Who then, as Vallieres asks rhetorically, assassinated Pierre Laporte?

The people who primed that human bomb, apostles of violence like the author of Revolutionary Strategy and the Role of the Advance Guard.

Cable 10 Helped

On Thursday, February 24, 1977, Cable 10 came to my assistance on very short notice. That evening I was to make a slide and tape presentation about the Victoria West Day Care to a Victoria West com-munity meeting. The tape had been edited the previous evening. When I heard the tape on the Thursday morning it was obvious it could not be used at a public meeting. The reading of the script was just not presentable.

Cable 10 received a call for help at noon that day and I had the tape back by 6:30

As a member of this community I certainly found Cable 10 accessible. Cable 10's community service is like so many other community services; you know it's there but, you don't use it until you need it.

Apology in Order

Although Scott Wallace certainly does not represent the political party of my choice, I have always believed he had a certain amount of integrity. That illusion was shattered by his recent accusations against four of the finest artists in our province. He can rest assured that works of these artists were purchased for the provincial collection solely on their armerit. Also, historically speaking, it would be a pretty serious omission not to include them in such an important collec tion of British Columbian art. Regrettably several of our major painters and sculp tors are not represented in the collection for the very reason that they were serving on the committee

I wish to add that I have known Max Bates and Nita Forrest for many years. The qualities they are both distinguished for, aside from their fine works, are those of honesty and incorruptibility. Mr. Walace owes all these artists an apology.

The one thought that pleases me is the likelihood that he will never lead this province. — Jack Kidder, 1032 McGregor

Members of the legislature act like says. Now there are only five women in the Quebec national assembly.

Getting Better

Perhaps Quebec is different and more women might soften the hard edges of the legislature, but B.C., which has proportionately twice as many female members as Quebec has, is probably the rowdiest provincial legislature in Canada.

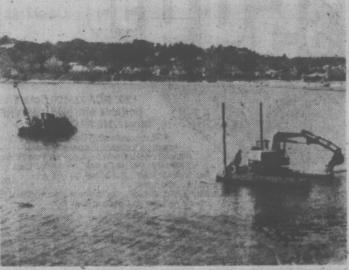

And our women legislators are often just as childish as the men. But the myth survives and flourishes among modern feminists. Men have made an incredible mess of things, oppressed women and minorities, polluted the environment, etc. etc. is a short-list of the argument's many subclauses. .. If only women had the power, so it goes, things would be bet-working of the feminist arguments of half a century ago. If only women had the vote, sensible and rational politics would prevail, they said.

> Modern women's liberation scorns woman-on-a-pedestal, a rarer and more refined object than males mucking about in the profane workaday world. So why is there current today the idea that women are somehow superior moral beings, that if women ran the governments and big business corporations society would be kind and humane and male-created problems, the destructive fallout of man's competitive urge, the old hunter instinct, would evaporate?

Perhaps. But more likely is that the Lise Payettes of future legislatures will be standing there toeto-toe with infantile male-politicians It may be just so. But we are making sensitive, informed speeches suspicious. It sounds a lot like a re- and the occasional raspberry too.

Dredges work near site of proposed Shoal Bay pumping station

Pumping Location

The location of a pumping station in Oak Bay has been under a spotlight of con-cern since it was first revealed that such a structure would be required. At an outstanding cost of $84,000 the Capital Regional District introduced a location and design which it alone had chosen, without any public hearing or indeed con-sultation with the citizens affected. The CRD in effect wasted $84,000 on a site which was not only a waterfront park, but was in a residential area. Oak Bay residents affected directly and indirectly by such a contraption rallied to the support of the principle—that such a that a location for a site should be made by fected by the pumping station, in cooperation with their elected representatives, the Oak Bay council.

Under the circumstances a special committee, consisting of elected officials and concerned citizens, was struck to determine a suitable location for the inevitable pumping station.

Unfortunately, the concerned citizens seem to have been at a disadvantage from the outset-$84,000 had already been spent on a site which was embarrassingly unac ceptable, the rejection of which was countered by stubborn entrenchment and the drawing of battle lines. At one point that the battle grew rather personal and vindictive, centered around prominent in-dividuals, or what some labelled "a small group of Oak Bay property owners."

What the media have neglected to do, is emphasize that this group of concerned property owners number over 700, who collectively represent $500,000 to $600,000 of municipal tax revenue. All of these property owners are committed to the principal, that the pumping station be built on the Victoria golf course, in as much as that property provides the only open space of sufficient size available upon which a pumping station could be constructed at an able distance from homes, Of the four sites now under consideration by the CRD, all are in close proximity of homes. The Earn Street site will be within 200 feet of 15 family homes, with six of them within 100 feet. If placed at the corner of Beach Drive and Transit Ro 13 houses will be within 240 feet, five within 125 feet. If built on the Bower house site, nine houses will be within 175 feet. five within 85 feet. The Newport and Beach Drive site will be within 200 feet of

Unfortunately, the sanctity of the golf course seems to have prevailed-but how can it. When so many tax paying citizens have demanded a site on the golf course? The battle is drawing to a close. Inevitably the CRD reemphasizes its authoritative position and its power to pass final judgment-regardless of citizen or council decisions, the politicians eriously ponder the fork in the road, and citizens stare in amazement and wonder if this is really the way the democratic system is supposed to work.-Michael Ziegler, 350 Beach Drive.

Simplisitic Analysis

F. J. Scott Hall's recent (March 10) plea for a journalistic dialogue and poll with the people of Quebec is a modest proposal with satiric underpinings its present author has clearly failed to appreciate. I write as one who has lived and worked with French and English-speaking the other, and can only conclude that his simplistic analysis was one written out of the very ignorance he deplores. Mr. Hall confirms this last with his all but laughable Freudian slip in referring to not only your readers, but the people ', an ignorance further un derlined by his amateurish attempt to pin down the historical background of Quebec. While I agree with Hall's suggestion that much of the rest of Canada does not appreciate the real feelings of Quebec, no exchange of journalists is necessary to enlighten the Quebecois of their plight. Canada is not unique because of the French fact. Its English-speaking majority has reacted no differently than any other behemoth. We crush with an unknowing contempt any seemingly fragile creature who is so foolish as to try to share some ill-defined path with our "slouching beast." It is my experience, however, that fragility is not one of the characteristics of French-Canadians. While I applaud only the non-violent Quebec crises, they date from long before Confederation. The dispute for Saguenay has been with us since 1541, as has, more importantly, the ethnicity of New France. The Spanish minance of more than 400 years ago has only changed in that the enemies of New France are now a polyglot herd whose real intentions can only be regarded with

Let us all give Mr. Hall and his ilk their smattering of applause which is sought so benignly. We British Columbians are indeed mirror images of the Quebecois, but as Mr. Hall has neglected to note, in a mirror image, everything is reversed. As-similation is all that awaits Quebec in Confederation. The translation of "la puissance" means little more now than it did in early 1867, and the realities of federal efforts at bilingualism serve only to reinforce that conclusion. I say to Mr. Hall that the much alleged "loss" that Quebec's separation would bring upon nada is the only real fallacy in this whole matter. Such a measure is, in my yiew, the one remaining way that the singular richness of Quebec may be preserved. Myopia is a chronic ail: but it is not one that the true Quebocois

Linvite Mr. Hall to inform this writer to how the remaining nine provinces plan to preserve their "culture," if any. Who knows, he may make congressman.

Climate of Fear

With the apparent blessing of Premier Bennett, Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm operates his department in a climate of fear, fear of opening the cheque and finding it cut back or cut off, fear of publicly speaking out, fear of criticizing the injustices, fear of asking "why can't I have my federal aid of $22.50" or "where did my mincome cost of living go

How many times have we heard people say: "Please don't mention my name, I don't want to lose the small pension I am getting"? Handicapped through no fault of their own, poor or underprivileged, the beaten and battered, the needy old, fighting their own uphill battles, then have contend with this arrogant, insensitive dictator as a final indignity. And his answers make them feel they are a nuisance and a burden to his society.

Fresh Water Is Getting Hard to Find

By JOANNE OMANG

BUENOS AIRES - If all the world's water were represented in a half-gallon milk carton, the amount of fresh water that people can get at would be about half a teaspoonful. And only a single droplet of that would not have to be pulled out of the earth.

United Nations Water Conference that opened Mon-day in Mar del Plata, Argentina, are a mine - or perhaps a fountain — of such informa-tion. The worldwide scarcity of fresh water means that women in rural Burma regularly walk bring it home, a six-hour trip. What they get is often polluted: 25,000 persons die every day from water-borne disease.

There are floods, droughts, waste, water rights and irrigation to discuss at the two-week conference, which is expected draw more than 2,000 representatives from most countries on earth to the seaside resort south of here.

This will be a conference on policy and management," said Secretary-General Yahia Abdel Mageed of the Sudan in a briefing Friday. "The accomplishment of the con-ference should be looked on as creating awareness of the magnitude and importance of the problems of water.

One problem sure to arise is political. UN meetings have traditionally provided forums for conflicting nations to denounce one another. This one could see several such dis-putes. India and Bangladesh are quarreling over rights to the Ganges River, while Israel and the Arab countries have all prepared position papers on the Jordan River question in case the other side raises it.

Panama has said it will not bring up the Canal issue, although some other Latin American country may do so. Host country Argentina is considered certain to renew its complaint over Brazil's plans to erect the world's biggest hydroelectric plant on the Parana River just before it enters Argentina.

Conference organizers hope, however, that the main focus will be on the worldwide fresh water supply crisis looming by the year 2000, and that some action will result "through dis- or unmetered faucets.

Half of all people supplied with water get it only intermittently, and a quarter to half of all water that leaves the listed as unaccounted for

One human body demands from a pint and a half to five gallons of water a day, depending on the climate and exercise involved, UN documents said. Human use ranges from a subsistence-level three pints to 165 gallons per person where lawns are watered and golf courses maintained.

Growing industrialization is making it worse. Agriculture now accounts for 80 per cent of pansion of traditional means, the world's fresh water use, and it takes 1,000 tons of water to grow a ton of grain. In-dustrial water use is more than Mageed said.

Four preparatory conferences have arrived already at a basic list of priorities that

Pension Plan In Shambles

THE GLOBE AND MAIL

The federal government were dead? What about all the asked for the trouble it got single people aged 60 to 64, also in need?

Parliament over the old-age security bill which passed the House. What is dangerous is that the trouble could eventually involve the whole old-age ecurity program in Canada. In 1975 Health and Welfare Minister Marc Lalonde made two basic changes in the oldage, pension. It had been either, to grant the pension, or available, without a means test, to all qualified citizens and residents at 65. Mr. Lalonde decided to make it available, on a means test, to persons between the ages of 60 on for some time - to make it and 64 who were married to or available on a universal basis had a stable common-law to everybody at 60. The univerrelationship with a person 65 or sality of the pension was at over who was in receipt of the

By doing this, Mr. Lalonde altered the universality of the scheme, subjecting certain but not all recipients to a means test. And he made it inequitable. Not all people aged 60 to 64 were entitled to the pension and supplements which could accompany it, even on a means test. Exempted were widows and widowers -130,000 when Mr. Lalonde made his changes — and some 70,000 unmarried, separated and vorced people.

Also exempted were people 60 to 64 who had been granted the pension, and whose pen-sioned spouses—65 and over—had died. As soon as the older partner died, the younger partner was taken off the pension and supplements. This pens to about 200 people

It is these people about whom opposition members are concerned. They tried to stall a government bill which deals with other aspects of the pen-sion unless it was amended to say that a pensioner would not be cut off when his or her older partner died.

Certainly what is being done is cruel. But the government could not yield to the opposition demands without going road it should have avoided in the first place.

If it gave in and let widows and widowers aged 60 to 64 keep a pension they gained because their former spouses were over 65 and getting the pension, what about all the widows and widowers aged 60 to 64 who never got a chance to early pensions to a select group of people, while denying them to others. It would be impossible to choose between one group of widows and another once the basis for selection had been removed.

But it would not be easy a means basis, to everybody over the age of 60. If it were done on a means test to begin with, the pressure would be intacked, validly, many years ago; but it would be impossible to dispense with it now. Most of the pensions in the country have for years been built on the basis of the universal old-age pension; it would be cruel to millions to destroy that univer-

Yet it is not at all certain that it would be a good idea to at 60. It is not only the cost that sent period of huge government deficits, it does matter. If age 60 became the time when the universal pension were paid, it ould also become the time for most employers pressed or by many unions — of man-datory retirement. And that could be grossly unfair to many.

Sixty-five is the fairly universal mandatory retirement age at present. Many workers do not want to retire at 65, nor have their abilities so declined that retirement is necessary But the pension is there younger workers are pressing on their heels, and out they go often to sudden privation. If they were to be pushed out at 60, the cruelty would be vastly more pervasive. People who are already in need may be campaid at 60. If their need is real; they can get social assistance must retire to the old-age pen-

Mr. Lalonde should gever quitable business of giving the pension to some 60-to-64-year-olds who need it and denying it to others. He should have left

"Amazingly, though, there's still a lot left," he says, "and it will be a very long time before it runs

But he is concerned about the loss of really fine pieces which slip through the net of the official Reviewing Committee on the Export of Works of Art either because they are less than 100 years old or cost less than £4,000 ($6,400) and thus fall the limit of the committee's outside the limits of the committee's

"One thing that has been suggested is that the age limit might be reduced to 70 years, or even 33 years, to include the best Art Deco stuff," he says, "I don't know what the answer will be, but I do think there is a problem.

all one way. Official statistics published by the Antiques Trade Gazette suggest that for 1975, the last 'year for which figures exist, Britain exported antiques worth £56.3 million ($90 million), and imported antiques worth £24.2 million ($38.7 million). This year the gap seems certain to widen, but it is nevertheless true that it is possible in America today to buy eighteenth-century English furniture and old English silver more cheaply than they can be bought in England. As a result a small number of fine pieces have retraced their steps across the Atlantic.

In addition, as Phillips, the auctioneers, point out, London's pre-eminence in antiques makes it the centre of an entrepot trade. In the past year sellers from 40 countires have put their goods into Phillips' acutions, sometimes only to have them bought and taken back to where they

It is impossible not to admire the marketing skills of the trade; if only they were applied to more conventional products, the Labor government's export-led boom would be a reality and not a pious customers off the plane at Heathrow in a chauffeur-driven Bentley, sweeps them off in majesty to a warehouse where his goods. are displayed, settles the deal and sweeps them back again.

Different markets buy different goods. Germany buys modern reproductions ("So long as it looks right, they'll buy it') and is also a market for really fine Georgian pieces. The Japanese favor musical instruments and are said to be suckers for old violins. The Spanish market, surprisingly large and said to be based on Portuguese who exiled themselves to Spain during the left-wing troubles in Portugal, like Victorian and Edwardian inlaid furniture.

Italians traditionally like walnut but will buy anything they think is good value and that means almost anything. The American market is in really flashy fur-niture on the West Coast, sophisticated stuff in New York and "any old rubbish"

Canada buys between-the-wars reproductions, fake Jacobean oak which once graced a million English suburban houses. Australia is avid for Victoriana. "In fact," a Bermondsey dealer, said thoughtfully, "I could go to the U.S. and buy Victorian furniture and sell it to the Australians at a profit. I'm seriously thinking of doing it."

And the English? The dealers shrug their shoulders in disgust. "Most of them would rather have a bit of foam rubber covered with plastic," said one. "Nobody educates them how marvellous old English furniture is. In my shop at the moment I've got a Georgian dining table for £150 ($240) but most English people would prefer to go to Heal's and buy a modern copy of it for £250 ($400)."

Not all antiques are quite what they seem. One dealer tells a story he swears is true. A brilliant copy of an eighteenth-century piece was made by a craftsman in Birmingham, put on sale in a smart London store and sold to an Arab for £20,000 ($32,000). When the Arab tried to take it home, alas, the Reviewing Committee stepped in. It was, they said, a piece of national importance which had to stay in Britain, a classic example of eighteenth-century craftsmanship. Today, the dealer says, the piece is on display in a London

The American Soybean Association said it had been assured after a meeting with government officials that there ment officials that there would be no export controls on soybeans and products because of escalating prices and a tight supply situation. Also a factor was another report that Russia's sunflower seed crop would be lower than had been expected. Oil from this seed competes with soybean oil.

been expected. Oil from this seed competes with soybean oil.

Another big factor was a rumor that a major exporter had sold a large quantity of soybeans to the People's Republic of China, where there currently is a problem in the growth and production of some agricultural products.

After soybeans, meal and oil had touched their early highs, there followed a brief interlude of profit-taking and price retreats. But demand continued at a high level and sellers were not too numerous. There was some fairly good overnight export business in grains, but it appeared that the three pits merely mirrored the strong moves in the complex. The pace of trade in grain was considerably slower. ably slower.

Just a Day in the Sun At the Great Race Place

Precisely at 12.32 p.m., the voice of C. D. Anderson, the public address announcer, intoned: "The flag is up." Almost immediately the starting gate swung open and 12 thoroughbreds were driving for position in the seven-furlong dash to the wire in the first race at that Great Race Place, Santa

This was 11 days ago, Sunday, March 6, and not since Dec. 26, 1964, when the track was opened, were so many California racing fans to gather together.

The attraction was the "Big Cap", the Santa Anita Handfap, worth the ample sum of $273,550 with $173,550 going to the winner. The sub feature was a bright-eyed, 16-year-old boy with the suddenly magical name of Steve Cauthen. And Cauthen for all the world looks as if he stepped out of a prep classroom into a tack room by mistake. But it's no mistake. He is the hottest jock in the land and although he was to get only one winner that day, he was close up for two sec-

How good is he? Well, Jim Baedeker of Irving, Calif., is a professional race handicapper and that has been his profession for more than 30 years since he left an earlier home in Chicago.

«Santa Anita is his beat, as is Hollywood Park, where a harness meet was in progress, and also Los Alimitos, where the quarter horses were running. And, in Baedeker's eyes, young Cauthen need only stay healthy and accident free to be a tremendous success.

"He's the best young rider I've seen in years," Baedeker who once predicted an opening day perfect card at Hollywood Park. That event took place on June 27, 1950, has never been duplicated and still stands as a world record.

And oddly enough, Baedeker got his part in this opus because of an association with a totally different sport—lawn bowling. Yes, sports makes strange bedfellows, and Baedeker, in his leisure moments turns to bowling for relaxation. It seems a strange contrast, but "I enjoy bowling," he said. "It gives me almost complete relaxation from racing." Baedeker is one of the top lawn bowlers in California and annually takes part in the Walt Disney Masters championships.

As to business, he and his two sons, Bob and Rick, and Terry Turrel form the handicapping team that bears his name on cubicles outside the Santa Anita gates and at other tracks in that area.

How does he make out, or did he on this day? Not bad, and better than most. He had two winners, three first picks ran second, three second choices ran first, he supplied the daily double and the wheel horse twice in the three exacta

He missed on the feature as the highly-regarded Ancient Title ran down the line and the favored King Pellinore couldn't catch the pace and finished a trying third. Crystal Water was the winner after a stretch-long duel with the Irish-bred Front-runner Faliraki. The selectors should probably have known better. Because in Crystal Water's previous out he had equalled the turf course record over a mile and

But the U.S. House of Repassassinations committee's grilling of Santo Trafficante on Wednesday shed no light on how much evidence the committee has to upport that connection Trafficante, 62, refused to answer any questions, even after he was threatened with contempt of Congress.

The former Cuban gambling czar pleaded his constitutional rights against self incrimina-tion more than a dozen times.

In a Washington Post arti-cle last year, George Crile, a Harper's Magazine editor, re-ported that a Cuban exile named Jose Aleman said Trafficante told him in Sep-tember, 1962, that Kennedy would be killed.

Trafficante, of Miami, was one of three underworld figures involved with the CIA in an unsuccessful attempt to slay Cuban Premier Fidel Castro in 1960, the old Senate intelligence committee said.

That committee looked into the Cuban-Mafia angle two years ago as part of its inves-tigation of CIA abuses. The committee concluded Castro was unlikely to have had a hand in Kennedy's slaying despite Castro's knowledge of underworld plots against him.

Carter Seeking End To Abortion Funding

Man Kills Self, Hostages Safe

SOUTH SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - A gunman, fleeing a botched robbery attempt and vowing never to be taken alive, shot and killed himself early today after holding a man and woman hostage for 14 hours, police said.

Police Chief Jim Datzman said he was notified by a hos-pital that Michael Guile, 31, died at 7:09 EST, slightly more than an hour after he shot himself in the chest. His two hostages were freed

Sheriff John McDonald had said the gunman agreed to surrender but asked for a few minutes alone. A short time later, he said, a single shot rang out and the woman bostage. Pauline Gomez, told police Guile was on the kitchen

Authorities had believed that the male hostage, Tony Jojola, had been wounded in the shoulder during an early exchange of gunfire. McDonald said later that Jojola was unharmed and that the story of his wound had been made up by the gunman.

During the siege, Guile had said he would prefer death over a return to prison.
"I'm going to die," he told The Associated Press in a telephone interview. "I don't want to present for the proper for the state of the present for the said of the present for the present fo want to go back to prison for the rest of my life. "I fully expect to die right here . . . not that I want to, but, you know, if it means that's what I have to do." Guile's parole officer, Lynne Atkinson, said he was released from San Quentin prison in May, 1976, after serving time for a robbery conviction.

Guile had said he was

QUESTION: How many servings of milk should a pregnant woman have each day?

Answer:
Four servings each day of milk and milk products are necessary to meet the needs of the woman plus those of the growing fetus. One serving is equivalent to 1 cup milk, 1 cup cottage cheese or yoghurt, a 1½ inch cube of cheese,

What foods can a person eat in order to avoid constipation without using laxatives? ANSWER:

Foods which are high in fibre content, such as bran ce reals, baked products made with bran, vegetables such as celery, and fruit will help. It is also important to drink adequate amounts of fluid (8 cups per day, including that in beverages and soups) and to get regular exercise.

Hoo-Hoo? The Snark Knows!

"9" and the word "Snark", are all of special significance to the International Concatenated Order of Hoo-Hoo.

(Webster's dictionary tells me the word "concatenated" means "to link together") Formed in the New York area in 1893 by lumbermen, Hoo Hoo Clubs have spread throughout the United States. Canada and into Australia, today of around 83,000.

Purpose of the Order is to provide a common ground of fellowship where male members of all branches of lumber and forest products can associate, develop essential principals of mutual welfare, enjoy friendship, instill confidence and promote edu-cated knowledge of the lumber industry.

I learned all this from Tom Wellburn, who started his lumber career in Victoria with Leigh and Sons and Moore and Whittington and later was associated with other companies on Vancouver Island.

He told me that the number "9" was adopted by the first Hoo-Hoo Club, because it was considered lucky.

Today, clubs meet when possible on the ninth of the month. The time is set around a nine, perhaps 5:59 p.m., and Wellburn points out "even our dues end with a nine on the cents side never an even number of dollars."

Similarly the black cat was adopted for luck "and because it has nine lives."

You'll see it on the Order's emblem, in its magazine, on individual membership cards and on members' lapel pins. The word "Snark"?

Again the dictionary says that word means "a chimerical creature invented by Lewis Carrol in his poem The Hunting of the Snark, dated.

Chimerical or not from in-ternational to local levels, that word is used instead of "president" to designate the head of each group. His full title is always Snark of the Universe. He has an executive of nine members and it is titled The Supreme Wellburn also told me how the first Hoo-Hoo Club happened to be formed.

Back in 1892, three lumbermen, strangers to each other, were travelling east to New York State by train.

There was a bad land slide, he explained. "The train was locked in for three days and in that time, the three be-came acquainted, learned they were all in the same business, all travelling to the same destination, but in no instance did their goals over-

They formed a friendship by getting together again, the following year.

The meeting took place, for a second time in the New York area, and it was then the trio decided to organize a club in which lumbermen could get together "at least took in while" to know each once in a while" to know each other better through fellow-suggests as the words are often used when members meet each other for a first time, they really mean "Who-

He also put forward the idea that "a wise old owl says Hoo-Hoo," so the owl's wisdom may have been combined with the black cat and the number "9" to create symbols of wisdom, luck and long life.

Hoo-Hoo Clubs reached Canada in the early part of this century and spread west to national Order of Hoo-Hoo met in 1975 (this year the meeting is to be in Portland) the largest Hoo-Hoo Club in the Order. Wellburn joined in the mainland city during the mid-50s, when Dick Scott was Snark of The Universe. Then, in 1956, he organized Victoria Hoo-Hoo Club, No. 183, and became its first Snark.

Pat Corneille is presently the local Hoo-Hoo Snark. Membership is steady at around 50. There are no regular meetings but when one is called it's on the ninth of a month and the time is usually In the more than 19 years since the club was formed, local Hoo-Hoos have financially supported a junior forest warden program in this area and donated equipment for clearing hiking trails on prop-erty south of Shawnigan Lake.

They have sponsored tours of logging areas for elementa-ry and high school students so they could actually see log-ging, clean-up and reforestra-tion in progress.

There is a Cowichan Hoo-Hoo Club. No. 229 based in Duncan (Snark there is Morris Douglas and both groups work to promote fel-lowship between members in the industry and also, as Well-

Putting the Squeeze On Vitamin C Sources

We have been getting a lot of questions lately from peo-ple who are arraid that the di-sastrous freezes suffered by the Florida citrus crop this winter may freeze orange juice right out of their budvitamin C supplement or a fortified source, such as those sugary fruit drinks? The answer is no, for there are many other sources of this essential vitamin. In turning to other sources however, you should know something about the role of vitamin C, or ascorbic acid.

The importance of vitamin C was recognized centuries before the actual substance was identified in the laboratowas identified in the laboratory. Scurvy, the deadly disease caused by a vitamin C deficiency, was described as far back as 1500 BC, and throughout history scurvy epidemics have occurred regularly whenever people did not have access to fresh fruits and vecetables.

have access to fresh fruits and vegetables.

As far back as the fifth century, Chinese sailors carried pots of growing ginger aboard their ships because they knew that eating the green leaves prevented the dread disease. Western sailors, on the other hand, were not so astute. Vasco da Gama lost half his men to scurvy on the first trip around the Cape of Good Hope.

By the beginning of the 19th entury, the British navy required that a daily ration of oranges, lemons or limes be issued to its sailors, who were soon dubbed "limeys."

While it became well known while it became well known that eating certain foods would prevent scurvy, it was not until the 1930s that vi-tamin C was finally identified in the laboratory. Even today, there is still much we do not know about its many functions in human metabolism.

We know, for example, that humans, monkeys and guinea pigs are almost unique among animals in being unable to manufacture ascorbic acid within their own bodies. We also know that vitamin C is essential for the formation of tissues together.

Vitamin C helps maintain blood vessels and form hemoglobin, the red pigment of the blood that carries oxygen. It is essential for the bocy's utilization of iron, and for the proper formation and maintenance of bones and teeth. It plays a part in the metabolism of proteins and one of the

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

B. vitamins, folacin, as well as in the secretion of adrenal hormones and the formation of substances needed by the central nervous system.

But just how much vitamin C do we need for all these functions? Surprisingly, we are not yet sure what the op-timum dose is. We know that about 15 milligrams a day is enough to prevent or cure scurvy. In 1974, the Food and Nutrition Board of the National Academy of Sciences set the Recommended Dietary Allowance at 45 milligrams, and the Food and Drug Ad-ministration's USRDA, which is the standard used for nutri-tional labelling, calls for 60 milligrams a day. milligrams a day.

Because vitamin C is one of the water-soluble vitamins, it is not stored long in the body, meaning that what is not used within a few hours is excreted in the urine. Therefore, we need to consume vitamin C each day. As any excess is excreted, an occasional large dose does no apparent harm or good.

But this does not mean that constant huge intakes of 2,000 or 4,000 milligrams a day may not have serious effects if taken over a long period of Vitamins taken in huge doses are being used as a drug rather than a nutrient. And as with all drugs, there are possible side effects.

Many people are taking there is no real proof that this has any effect on the frequency of colds. What we have found is that this excessive daily use of vitamin C can have toxic effects. In the laboratory, animals fed large doses of ascorbic acid have problems producing offspring. In humans, it has been shown that excessive intake of vitamin C can alter the results of common urine tests used by diabetics. High levels of the vitamin also may induce the formation of painful "gravel" in the bladder and reverse the effect of anticlot-

As there is no known reason is a good idea to avoid unnecessary supplements and eat foods that are naturally rich in the vitamin. Although we tend to think of citrus fruits as our primary source many other foods are rich in vi-tamin C. Those fruits that are vitamin C sources include: strawberries, cantaloupe, honeydew melon, pineapple, ban-anas, avocados and berries. Vegetable sources are: kale, turnip greens, green peppers, broccoli, brussel sprouts, mustard greens, collards and cauliflower. These, in fact, are higher gram for gram in ascorbic acid than are citrus fruits. Cabbage, spinach, as-paragus, rutabagas, okra, to-matoes and potatoes also pro-

Here's the Cream of the Fruit Desserts

One of the most unusual and tempting desserts I have sampled in many an age I discovered on my last trip to London. It was in a bustling and generally excellent res-taurant (the noise level is a bit high) named Lacy's, at 26 Whitfield Street. Lacy's is owned by the patron-chef, William Lacy, and his wife, Margaret Costa, who also happens to be a cookbook au-thor and is food author of The Times of London. The dessert in question was a marvelous jumble of fresh fruits, baked, divided, with that outra-geously rich clotted cream of geously rich clotted cream of England. That cream we can-not duplicate, so I have de-vised an appropriate dish made with pastry cream, one of the basic and finer things in the repertoire of the French pastry chef. Here's my version of Lacy's dessert.

something I can feed for stronger stems?—J.C. DEAR J.C., The jade plant, a succulent, can grow to monstrous proportions in the proper outdoor environment, especially in the western part of the United States when planted in the ground. As a houseplant, we don't recommend it, however we've seen many that did very well.

As far as your particular problem is concerned, unless you are overwatering, thus creating mushy stems (succulents need very, very little water), then you'll either have to cut your plant back so that the stems will support the plant or learn to live with the idea that some plants need support (witness philogendrons on poles, and so forth), and then perhaps you can rig up a support system that will be less aesthetically displeasing. This is one those problems that's difficu to diagnose without actually seeing the plant, but we hope we've put you on the right track anyway

P.S. In answer to your question concerning your problems with your angel wing begonia, we suggest you take the plant to your local nursery and ask for an in-person diagnosis, because without seeing the plant it would be simply a wild guess on our part

By HARRIET HART If you had an opportunity to visit Canada's far north now, you would probably come across some chicken-like white birds, representatives of three types of ptarmigans.

According to the six-page illustrated folder "'Ptarmigans", North America has tens of millions of ptarmigans. However, most of them live in areas which are rarely seen by man.

The folder stresses the amazing degree to which the ptarmigan has adapted to its Arctic surroundings. For instance, the color of its plumage seasonally adjusts to its environment. In winter it is almost pure white.

One unique feature of this chicken-like bird are its toes. They are covered with feathers so that the bird can walk on loose snow as if he wore snowshoes.

Other adaptations to its surroundings are equally intrigu-ing. For instance, the ptar-migan has eyes which are able to gather sufficient light to see in the dusky winter days of the Arctic. Yet, a few, weeks later, they can cope well with the glare of the spring sun on the snow.

Ptarmigans have unusually large hearts. Each stroke of such a heart can pump a lot of energy into the body. This is probably one reason why rctic ptarmigans are such ex-ellent flyers.

For more information about ptarmigans write to: Informa-tion Division, Canadian Wild-life Service, Environment Canada, Ottawa, Ont. K1A

'Grandma sure spends a lot of time talkin' to the maintenance man. I think maybe he's her boy friend."

The Bridge Expert

What odds do you and your partner need to bid a grand slam? Mathematicallyk the odds should be 2 to 1 in your favor. The reason follows.

If both sides are vulnerable, you score an extra 750 for bidding and making a grand slam. But if the grand nlam goes down, you stand to lose 1,530 points by not having stopped at a small slam (100 for being set one trick, 500 for a vulnerable game, 750 for the small slam, and the trick score, in a major suit, of 180 points).

But, paradoxically perhaps, contract. Such was sthe case in today's deal, which came up in a rubber-bridge game.

North's raise to four spades was an optimistic call. On his more-or-less minimum opening hand, he should have con-tended himself with a raise to three spades. Possibly South overbid when he countracted for the grand slam, but in view of North's jump to four spades, it is difficult to cen-spades, it is difficult to censure South too severely.

West made the normal opening lead of the heart quen, and South's ace won the trick. As is obvious, the success of the grand slam contract depended on avoiding the loss of a trump trick to the defenders' queen. If South guessed the location of that key card, he would make his key card, he would make his grand slam contract, since his losing heart would be discarded on dummy's fifth diamond And if he misguessed the trump situation, declarer would be down two tricks, losing a heart and a trump trick.

But if a trump trick were lost, South would also go down at a six-spade contract down at a six-spade contract. In other words, seven spades is a better contract than six spades, for the chances of success are equal and the reward for making a grand slam is greater.

Would you have fulfilled the gran slam — or the small gran slam — or the small slam? Probably not, for the finesse against West's queen would be taken only if you.

ARIES (March 21-Spril 19): Separate fantasy from actuality — a dream can be interesting, perhaps prophetic but it was a dream and should not be substituted for what is real, here and demanding of your attention. Shake off leth-future. It will be refreshing! TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Wish can "come true" if you-follow dictates of experience and conscience. Member of opposite sex is involved. Accent on hunch, teaching, learning process, building for future security. Cancer, Aquarius persons figure prominently. GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Individual with "weight problem" seeks your counsel. Give it, but also poke fun at your own foibles. Means avoid any hint of pomposity. Check legal affairs, especially partnership project. One who supposedly is doing a fair share may, in actuality, be shirking duty.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22): Open lines of communication. Be receptive where language, education, travel, publishing are concerned. Scorpio, Taurus, Leopersons could be part of scenario. Correct basic mistakes means stop taking situations, people for granted.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): If persistent, if you reject the superficial, you could dig deep enough to strike pay. dirt. Scorpio is in picture. In-tensified relationship is fea-tured. The occult is a part of scenario, too. You are a romantic and now there could be an abundance of romance. Are you ready?

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22); Highlight change of pace, di-plomacy, adjustment where home, family are concerned. If throat gives any difficulty attend to it immedaitely Your voice will be more im portant than in recent days Know it and be prepared to LIBRA (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22): Perfect techniques — eschew self-deception. See places, people in realistic light. Avoid direct confrontations. Take ring roads — what seems very real, permanent could be a decoy. Know it and protect self in clinches. Pisces, Virgo could play important roles.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Relationships are intensified. Nothing is tepid — it is hot or cold, all or nothing. Know it and if sitting on fence start jumping. Children, affairs of matters of speculation come sharply into focus; you are given message which spells future adventure.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov 22-Dec. 21): Affairs may seem to be going in circles. Trying to be going in circles. Trying to pin people down to definite statements may not be easy. Finish what you start. Rid yourself of "foolish" burden. Deal with Aries, Libra persons. Special note: check medicine chest. Be aware of labels. and antidates. labels - and antidotes.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan 19): New experiences open up means you are refreshed, stimulated by concepts, meth-ods not previously considered. Leo. Scorpio and Aquarius could figure prominently. A short trip, involving message or relative proves a highlight.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Accent on making most of accolades, chances, opportunities, "select hints." Natural capabilities surge to fore-front. Another Aquarian fig-ures prominently. Be realistic about finances - count your change.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Cycle high — stress flexibility. Welcome new contacts — encourage social gatherings. You could be at right place at right time. Be alert. observant. One who is subtle. for your best interests.

'Green Plant' Dahlias Special

"green plants" with no explanation of what a green plant

The gardener specializing in growing dahlias fully understands the meaning of this term, but to the home gardener it is in no way selflia grower a green plant is nothing more or less than a rooted cutting of a green shoot removed from a sprouted tuber.

The average home gardener is not aware of this method of propagation, yet there are times when it can be used to advantage.

For example, from one or ror example, from one or two tubers it is possible to ob-tain a number of plants all the same color for a massed planting that will make a feature of a small bed or part of a border.

last January.

"There were some guys pushing, it wasn't a fight really," he recalls, "and this stick just came back as I was skating by on my way to the bench."

It had been a long, brutal

"It took about two weeks to get over it. I'd lie awake and think about it, about how it happened when it didn't have to, but it doesn't bother me anymore. It's over and done and there's nothing you can do about it."

One thing Trafford's happy

One thing Trafford's happy about is that Lorry Gloeckner, the Cougar teammate who held the stick that hit him,

"That used to be my lifenat used to be my me-long dream, getting drafted into the NHL, but it'll never happen now. They have a rule banning anybody with one eye but I might get a scholarship somewhere, and who knows, they might even change the rules someday."

Trafford's immediate plans are to finish out the season with the Cougars and then just to see what happens hopefully to play another year in the league or go to college somewhere on a hockey schol-

And what does he think about violence in hockey? A good player learns to anticipate things, and Trafford smiles as if he saw that question coming like a lead pass. "There's no place for vio-lence, but hockey's always been an aggressive game and it always will be. To me vlo-lence is big brawls and stick swinging; fighting isn't neces-sarily, because you've got to protect yourself sometimes.

"I don't look on my ac-cident as an act of violence at all. If somebody had swung it at me and aimed to hurt, then it would have been violence, but not as it was.

Trafford says, however, there is too much rough stuff there is too much rough stuit in the game, though it seems to him to be getting better every year. He feels there's a growing awareness among the players that sometimes it's better to cool it.

Tougher anti-violence rules might have some effect, he says, but the real solution has to come from the players themselves, "because the game's only as rough as they want to make it. But violence isn't a topic that's occupying a lot of Traf-ford's thoughts today — after all, he's a hockey player, a Cougar, and right now he's thinking about the next game and about scoring. He hasn't managed a goal since he rejoined the team.

"Oh, I've had my chances, he says, and then raises both hands in a gesture of mock disbelief. "An open net against Portland; I don't be-lieve I missed!"

Still at large is John Peter Alexander Fraser, 32, who walked away from Wilkinson Road jail around noon the six months sentence for 22 counts of false pretence, is not considered dangerous.

A spokesman at the Jordan River camp said four inmates were missed during a routine bedcheck at 4:45 a.m.

Corrections staff set up pa-trols on the Jordan River road within 15 minutes but failed to spot the men.

Police speculate the men may have had an accomplice who drove them into town. The recapture came when a young girl in a residence at 119 Helmoken saw four youths changing their clothes in the back of the property. She called her mother at work who contacted RCMP.

Five officers from the Colwood detachment raced to the scene, and ave thase and caught up with the fugitives behind View Royal elementary school.

George Triplet, principal officer at Wilkinson Road, said Fraser had been assigned to a work party in the carpentry shop in a minimum security section of the jail. A guard went to get Fraser at 1 p.m. to tell him he had a visitor waiting to see him in the main building and discovered he was missing.

Triplet said Fraser had been checked only 15 minutes "It was totally unexpected," said Triplet. "We had Fraser is described as five feet eight, 165 pounds with brown hair, hazel eyes and with a one-inch sear over his wight evolvery. right eyebrow.

Triplet said Fraser started his sentence Jan. 5 and would have been eligible for release July 12.

Labor Council To Support Jobless Fight

The Victoria Labor Council hood issue and you didn't vote voted Wednesday to support a proposed campaign of nahalf of the unemployed.

Council president John Schibli said today that after considerable debate delegates had voted to throw the weight of their office behind a proposal by the New Westminster Labor Council for massive demonstrations in Ottawa and all provincial capitals.

The New Westminster co cil wants the Canadian Labor and the B.C. Federation of Labor to do the same at the Legislative Buildings here.

Schibli said no plans for a rally have been formulated and, "it's not up to the Victoria Labor Council to start it, our full support."

"Debate was fairly lengthy and very productive," he said. "In the past these things were usually barrelled right through because supporting the unemployed is a mother-
